

On Friday, 11th June 2025, I worked on building the Stats section of the landing page. This section includes three major design items arranged side by side using Flexbox.

The first item contains a heading, short description, and a button. The middle item shows an image which was imported from the assets folder. The last item displays three different stats (1M+ users, 92% satisfaction, 4.9/5 rating). Each stat has a bold number and a short description under it.

I reused the Button component here again for consistency. I also used Tailwind classes to control spacing, font sizes, and layout.

I understood how to use reusable components (like the Button) to practice the concept of DRY code.
